BRICS NEW DELHI DECLARATION Representation, Resilience and Cooperation

More than two decades ago, BRIC began as an economic term used to describe four rapidly growing economies-Brazil, Russia, India and China. Since then, it has evolved into BRICS, a formal international grouping that has expanded its membership and seeks a greater role for emerging and developing economies in global governance.

This evolution was evident at the 18th BRICS Summit, held in New Delhi on September 12-13, 2026. Hosted by India under the theme "Building for Resilience, Innovation, Cooperation and Sustainability," the summit brought together the expanded BRICS membership against the backdrop of geopolitical tensions, trade restrictions, rapid technological change, climate pressures and continuing debate over the representation of emerging and developing economies in global institutions.

The basic message from New Delhi was straightforward: developing countries want a bigger say in international decision-making, but BRICS also wants to move beyond demanding reform. It increasingly wants its members to build practical arrangements among themselves in finance, trade, technology, health, agriculture, energy, education and other fields.

For India, therefore, the New Delhi Summit presented an opportunity to shape the direction of a much larger BRICS and place issues important to India and the wider Global South at the centre of its agenda.

What Exactly is BRICS?

The term BRIC was originally coined in 2001 to describe the economic potential of Brazil, Russia, India and China. The four countries later turned the idea into a political forum, and their first summit was held in 2009. South Africa subsequently joined, turning BRIC into BRICS.

The grouping has since expanded considerably. It now comprises 11 members - Brazil, China, Egypt, Ethiopia, India, Indonesia, Iran, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Africa and the United Arab Emirates. Together, they account for about 49.5 per cent of the world's population, 40 per cent of global GDP and 26 per cent of global trade.

That gives a sense of why BRICS attracts attention. Nearly half of humanity lives in its member countries. Its membership includes some of the world's largest economies, energy producers, commodity suppliers, emerging markets and major developing countries.

BRICS has also created a Partner Country category. Ten countries entered this framework during 2025: Belarus, Bolivia, Cuba, Kazakhstan, Malaysia, Nigeria, Thailand, Uganda, Uzbekistan and Vietnam.

In simple terms, BRICS is trying to provide emerging and developing economies with a larger platform to discuss global problems and coordinate their positions. It is not built around a single political or economic model. Its members have different national interests and foreign policies. Their common ground lies largely in seeking greater influence for developing countries in international institutions and expanding practical cooperation among themselves.

This explains why the phrase "Global South" appears so prominently in the BRICS conversation. The term broadly refers to developing and emerging economies across Asia, Africa, Latin America and other regions. BRICS presents itself as one platform through which their concerns can receive greater international attention.

Why Was the New Delhi Summit Important?

The 2026 Summit came at an important stage in BRICS' evolution. The grouping is much larger than it was only a few years ago, but expansion creates a basic question: what should a bigger BRICS actually do?

India's answer during its fourth BRICS chairship was to focus on practical cooperation.

The scale of activity illustrates this approach. By the time of the summit, India had hosted more than 400 meetings and engagements across 30 cities, involving ministers, parliamentarians, officials, experts, businesses and other participants. Agriculture, health, technology, finance, energy, education, transport, urban development, climate change and security were all part of the process.

The 'New Delhi Declaration' that emerged from the summit consequently covers an unusually wide range of subjects.

At its heart, however, are two connected ideas. The first is that institutions created for an earlier international order need to give developing countries greater representation. The second is that BRICS countries should not wait for every global institution to change before cooperating among themselves.

That combination - reform existing institutions while building practical BRICS cooperation - is perhaps the easiest way to understand the significance of the summit.

A Louder Demand for A Greater Global South Voice

Consider a simple question: if developing economies today account for a much larger part of the world economy and population than they did decades ago, should their influence in global institutions also increase?

BRICS' answer is yes.

The New Delhi Declaration called for greater representation of emerging and developing economies in global decision-making institutions. This applies to the United Nations, and also to economic bodies such as the International Monetary Fund and World Bank.

The leaders called for comprehensive reform of the UN, including its Security Council, so that developing countries from Africa, Asia and Latin America have greater representation. For India, one provision was particularly significant: China and Russia reiterated their support for the aspirations of India and Brazil to play a greater role in the UN, including its Security Council.

The declaration also recognised African demands for greater Security Council representation.

Similar arguments were made about the IMF and World Bank. BRICS wants their governance structures to better reflect the increased economic importance of emerging and developing economies. It called for changes to IMF quotas and voting shares and greater representation for developing countries in the World Bank.

Voting shares, quotas and permanent seats translate into influence. Countries with greater representation have a larger role in shaping international rules, financial decisions and responses to crises. BRICS is therefore arguing that the distribution of power inside major international institutions should gradually catch up with changes in the world economy.

BRICS NEW DELHI DECLARATION...

At the same time, the grouping is not proposing that these institutions simply be abandoned. It reaffirmed the importance of the UN, IMF, World Bank and World Trade Organization while demanding their reform.

Terrorism: A Key Focus for New Delhi

Security was another major part of the declaration, and counter-terrorism carried particular significance for India.

BRICS leaders condemned in the strongest terms the terrorist attack in Jammu and Kashmir on April 22, 2025, in which 26 people were killed and many others injured. The declaration went beyond a general condemnation of terrorism. It referred specifically to the cross-border movement of terrorists, terrorism financing and safe havens. It called for zero tolerance towards terrorism and rejected double standards in dealing with it.

BRICS members also called for action against all UN-designated terrorists and terrorist entities and supported early finalisation of the proposed Comprehensive Convention on International Terrorism at the United Nations.

Counter-terrorism has been a recurring priority during India's previous BRICS chairships. In 2021, India led the adoption of a BRICS Counter-Terrorism Action Plan. The 2026 declaration continues that effort by placing terrorism, its financing and cross-border dimensions within a collective BRICS document.

The security agenda has also widened because crime itself has changed. The summit expressed concern over money laundering, illicit virtual assets, cross-border fraud and organised "scam compounds." It called for greater cooperation among law-enforcement agencies, financial intelligence units, customs authorities, technology platforms and financial regulators.

Cybersecurity received similar attention. BRICS wants cooperation against cybercrime, malicious software, deepfakes, misinformation and other forms of misuse of digital technology.

In other words, the security conversation is no longer only about soldiers, borders and conventional conflicts. Money, data, technology and digital networks have become part of national and international security.

Making Business Easier Within BRICS

One of the most closely watched areas of BRICS cooperation is finance.

The New Delhi Summit continued work on making cross-border payments among BRICS economies faster, cheaper and easier. The BRICS Payment Task Force is studying ways to improve links between national payment and messaging systems. Members are also discussing greater use of their local currencies for trade and investment.

The declaration, however, makes an important qualification: there is "no one-size-fits-all approach."

This is useful for understanding what was - and was not - agreed. The summit did not announce a single BRICS currency. Instead, the emphasis is on practical ways of improving payment connections while allowing countries to follow their own priorities.

Other financial initiatives moved forward as well.

Members continued discussions on a New Investment Platform, while work progressed on BRICS Multilateral Guarantees, which could help attract private investment into development projects by reducing financial risks and borrowing costs.

India also proposed a BRICS Risk Lab at GIFT City in Gujarat, linked to discussions about building greater insurance and reinsurance capacity among members.

For small businesses, the Jaipur Consensus proposed studying an invoice-discounting mechanism. The idea is relatively simple. A small business may have sold goods but still be waiting for payment. Being able to raise money against that unpaid invoice can free working capital instead of forcing the firm to wait.

The broader implication is that BRICS economic cooperation is becoming increasingly technical. Grand statements about reform remain important, but payment systems, insurance, trade finance and credit mechanisms are the kinds of tools that can eventually affect how businesses operate.

The New Development Bank's Role

BRICS already has one important institution of its own: The New Development Bank, or NDB.

The idea for such a bank was first explored during India's 2012 BRICS chairship. Today, the bank finances infrastructure and sustainable-development projects.

The New Delhi Summit called for the NDB to expand its ability to mobilise resources, increase local-currency financing, diversify its sources of funding and support projects that promote sustainable development and reduce inequality.

India's chairship also produced a BRICS-NDB Knowledge Portal. This is intended to collect development experiences, policy ideas and lessons from projects across member countries.

Developing countries require huge amounts of money for roads, energy systems, urban infrastructure, digital networks and other development needs. BRICS sees the NDB as an additional source of such financing and as a practical example of developing economies creating institutions to address their own requirements.

It does not replace the World Bank or other multilateral lenders. Instead, BRICS describes it as an additional development institution serving members and the wider Global South.

Technology at the Centre of BRICS Agenda

The New Delhi Declaration recognises AI as an important potential driver of economic growth and development. At the same time, it calls for AI to be safe, reliable, inclusive and accessible, particularly for developing countries.

The summit acknowledged India's hosting of the AI Impact Summit in February 2026 and committed members to implementing a BRICS statement on global AI governance.

Another important area is digital public infrastructure. In simple language, this means digital systems that can help governments and societies provide services at very large scale. BRICS is discussing a repository through which members could share knowledge about such systems and develop pilot projects.

Scientific cooperation is also expanding. A BRICS Science and Research Repository is planned to help researchers share knowledge. Members are cooperating in quantum technology, large research facilities and advanced industrial technologies.

For startups, the summit welcomed the BRICS Incubator Network and continued consideration of a BRICS Startup Innovation Fund.

This has a clear development implication. Countries that cannot access or develop new technologies risk falling behind economically. BRICS is therefore treating technological capability not merely as a business issue but as part of the wider question of development and the Global South's place in the future world economy.

From Farming to Mental Health: Cooperation Becomes More Practical

Some of the summit's most tangible outcomes came in areas that rarely dominate geopolitical headlines.

Agriculture: BRICS continued discussions on creating a BRICS Grain Exchange, potentially providing a platform for agricultural trade among members. It also established BRICS AGRIN - the Agro-Inputs, Genetic Resources and Information Network - as a farmer-centred framework for cooperation involving seeds, genetic resources and agricultural inputs.

Networks are also being developed for agroecology, regenerative agriculture and digital agriculture. Digital agriculture could involve tools such as AI, geospatial information, connected sensors and data analysis to help farmers make better decisions.

Health: The grouping launched a BRICS Mission for Healthy Lifestyle, with a roadmap covering 2026-2029, aimed particularly at problems such as obesity and non-communicable diseases.

Mental health emerged as another priority. BRICS agreed on cooperation through a training network and Centres of Excellence, with India's NIMHANS acting as the coordinating Centre of Excellence.

Members also supported a working group on Traditional, Complementary and Integrative Medicine, alongside cooperation on vaccines, medical regulation, digital health and disease surveillance.

A dedicated sub-working group will work towards a BRICS Integrated Early Warning System for Mass Infectious Diseases.

Energy and Climate: BRICS countries have very different energy systems. Some are major oil and gas producers, some are large energy consumers, and many are rapidly expanding renewable-energy capacity.

The New Delhi Declaration reflects this diversity.

It accepts that fossil fuels will continue to play an important role, particularly in emerging and developing economies, while also supporting reductions in greenhouse-gas emissions and a just and equitable energy transition.

The summit adopted guiding principles on smart grids and energy storage and supported cooperation on hydrogen and critical minerals.

Climate change was approached from a similar development perspective.

BRICS reaffirmed support for the Paris Agreement but stressed that developing countries need adequate finance, technology and capacity to adapt to climate change. It also opposed unilateral and protectionist climate-related measures, specifically mentioning carbon border adjustment mechanisms.

India's emphasis on disaster resilience was reflected in BRICS guidelines on early-warning data and principles for climate-resilient urban infrastructure. The declaration also recognised the contribution of the India-initiated Coalition for Disaster Resilient Infrastructure.

Traditional knowledge was linked to climate adaptation as well. Members welcomed BRICS principles encouraging communities to combine local and traditional knowledge with modern science and technology.

The larger argument is that climate action and economic development cannot be treated as separate questions for developing countries. BRICS wants the transition to a greener economy to take account of different national circumstances and development needs.

Conclusion

The 18th BRICS Summit in New Delhi underscored a larger transition: BRICS is no longer defined simply by the economic weight of its members, but increasingly by what they can accomplish together. India's 2026 chairship sought to give this expanded grouping a practical direction—combining the call for greater representation of developing countries in global governance with cooperation in finance, health, agriculture, technology, skills and security. Yet expansion also brings greater diversity of interests, making implementation the crucial test. As the chairship passes to China in 2027, the measure of BRICS will therefore lie not in the scale of its declarations, but in its capacity to convert common ground into collective action. New Delhi set out the ambition for a larger BRICS; the years ahead will show whether it can also become a more consequential one.

■ Seva Sankalp Abhiyaan Marks PM Shri Narendra Modi's 25 Years in Public Service

The nationwide Seva Sankalp Abhiyaan began on September 17 and will continue until October 17, marking Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi's 25 years in public service. The opening day was observed as Seva Diwas, with blood donation camps organised across the country. The milestone falls on October 7, 2026, completing 25 years since Shri Modi first took office as Gujarat Chief Minister in 2001. He served in that role for nearly 13 years before becoming Prime Minister in 2014. The campaign includes cleanliness drives, welfare-scheme awareness camps, seminars and photo and digital exhibitions tracing his tenure and governance initiatives. Organisers have also announced youth-focused activities, including a Seva First Innovation Challenge inviting ideas related to public welfare and policy. A national event featuring the Prime Minister's interaction with public representatives, including village sarpanches, is also planned.

■ Stricter Birth, Death Registration from October 1

The Registration of Births and Deaths (Amendment) Act will take effect on October 1, introducing stricter requirements for delayed registration. According to Registrar General of India, Shri Mrityunjay Kumar Narayan, births and deaths reported after one year but within two years will require approval from a District Magistrate, Sub-Divisional Magistrate or Executive Magistrate. Cases reported after two years will require an order from a Judicial Magistrate of the First Class. The designated authority must verify the authenticity of each case before permitting delayed registration. The law, passed by both Houses of Parliament and granted presidential assent last month, aims to curb delays and encourage timely registration.

■ Person to Person UPI Transfers Remain Free

The government has clarified that all person-to-person UPI transfers will remain free, irrespective of the amount. Consumers will also not be charged for making UPI payments to merchants. From October 15, 2026, specified person-to-merchant transactions above Rs. 2,000 will attract a 0.4%

Merchant Discount Rate (MDR), capped at Rs. 300 per transaction. This charge will apply to merchants, not customers. Merchant payments up to Rs. 2,000 will remain exempt, as will all transactions received by eligible small merchants collecting up to Rs. 1 lakh monthly through UPI QR codes under the P2PM (small and local vendors) classification. The Ministry said approximately 96% of merchant transactions would remain unaffected. Eligible transactions above Rs. 2,000 in railways, telecom, insurance, fuel and agricultural inputs will attract a flat Rs. 5 MDR. Banks have been advised to ensure merchants do not pass these charges to customers, while UPI applications are prohibited from imposing platform fees or hidden charges. The Ministry clarified that MDR is not a government tax but supports banks and payment service providers in maintaining and expanding UPI infrastructure. Five per cent of total MDR collections will contribute to a dedicated fund promoting UPI adoption among small merchants.

■ Shahzad Bhatti Network Declared Terrorist Group

The Union Home Ministry has declared the Pakistan-based Shahzad Bhatti Network a terrorist organisation under the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act, 1967. A gazette notification issued on September 16 added the network to the Act's First Schedule, which lists designated terrorist organisations. The network is accused of various instances of cross-border smuggling of arms, explosives and narcotics, and inciting youths and petty criminals to participate in terrorism. It also alleged that the group circulated hateful digital content targeting India's democratic institutions and communal harmony. Union Home Minister Shri Amit Shah said the designation was part of the government's policy of zero tolerance towards terrorism.

■ Six States Sign Kishau Dam Pact

The Chief Ministers of Uttar Pradesh, Uttarakhand, Himachal Pradesh, Haryana, Rajasthan and Delhi signed the Kishau Multipurpose Project agreement in New Delhi on September 15. The project envisages a 232.6-metre-high dam on the Tons River along the Uttarakhand-Himachal Pradesh border. It is intended to support Yamuna rejuvenation, improve drinking-water supplies, irrigate approximately 97,000 hectares and generate hydropower. Designated a National Project, Kishau's financing framework provides for the Centre to bear 90% of the water-component cost, with the participating states sharing the remaining 10%. The agreement would benefit all six participants and that the Centre and state governments were committed to completing the project at the earliest.

Highlighting the US$13.5 billion India Semiconductor Mission 2.0, the Prime Minister said over 70,000 young people had been trained towards the government's target of one lakh engineering students for the industry. IT Minister Shri Ashwini Vaishnaw reported US$11-12 billion in investment proposals under the mission. ■ EPFO Wage Ceiling Raised to Rs. 25,000

The Union Cabinet has raised the monthly wage ceiling for mandatory coverage under the Employees' Provident Fund Organisation (EPFO) from Rs. 15,000 to Rs. 25,000, effective September 17, 2026. The decision is expected to bring more than 51 lakh additional employees under mandatory coverage, expanding access to provident fund savings, pensions under the Employees' Pension Scheme and insurance under the Employees' Deposit Linked Insurance Scheme, subject to applicable provisions. Annual government expenditure is estimated at approximately Rs. 11,339 crore, compared with existing annual budgetary support of Rs. 10,250 crore. The estimated expenditure over five years is Rs. 56,696 crore. The ceiling was last revised in September 2014. The Labour and Employment Ministry said the increase reflects rising wages and the expansion of formal employment, bringing more workers within the statutory social security framework.

■ India Approves Power Supply to Flood-Hit Nepal

India has approved electricity exports of up to 654 megawatts for 18 hours a day to Nepal until December 31, 2026, following flood damage to the country's hydropower infrastructure. The Ministry of Power said the approval covers supplies to the Nepal Electricity Authority from September 13, between midnight and 6 p.m. daily. It permits exports of up to 600 MW through the Muzaffarpur-Dhalkebar transmission line and 54 MW through the Tanakpur-Mahendranagar line. The floods have reduced Nepal's domestic electricity generation, creating an additional demand for imports. The Ministry said the arrangement would help meet the shortfall and strengthen bilateral energy cooperation.

■ India, Canada Begin Fresh Trade Talks

India and Canada completed the fourth round of negotiations on a proposed Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement (CEPA) in New Delhi, as the two countries work towards a bilateral trade target of US$50 billion by 2030. The five-day round from September 14-18, covered goods, services, rules of origin and technical barriers to trade. It followed the third round held in Ottawa in July. Both sides aim to conclude negotiations in 2026. Bilateral merchandise trade declined 8.22% to US$7.95 billion in 2025-26, from US$8.66 billion the previous year. India's major exports to Canada include pharmaceuticals, steel, seafood, garments, electronics and chemicals, while imports include pulses, coal, fertilisers and crude oil. Telecommunications, computer and information services are among India's key services exports to Canada.
