Special Intensive Revision (SIR)

and the conduct of, all elections to Parliament and to the Legislature of every State, and of elections to the offices of President and Vice-President." Importantly, the responsibility for maintaining a complete and up-to-date electoral roll - the foundation of India's electoral democracy - takes precedence for the Commission, even before the conduct of elections. This mandate is further reinforced by the Representation of the People Act, 1950, and the Registration of Electors Rules, 1960. Over India's 75 years of electoral history, the country's election process and management have consistently received recognition both domestically and internationally. The SIR initiative has recently received strong endorsement from the country's apex court.

Any citizen let alone any resident of India is not automatically entitled to be a voter. Article 326 of the Constitution specifies the eligibility criteria: a person must be a citizen of India, at least 18 years old and ordinarily resident in the concerned constituency. In addition, Section 16 of the Representation of the People Act, 1950, lists certain disqualifications that apply. The Special Intensive Revision (SIR) exercise, intensive and precise in nature—surgical, one might say—aims to uphold the noble principle: "no eligible voter should be left out, and no ineligible person included in the electoral rolls." This approach achieves a higher degree of accuracy than that typically attained through annual or pre-election revisions.

Feature of Enumeration

The most distinctive feature of the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) compared to other forms of electoral roll revisions conducted annually or otherwise is the enumeration of electors, in this case with reference to October 27th, 2025. The enumeration period began on November 4th and will close on December 11th, 2025, following a one-week extension recently granted by the Election Commission of India (ECI). Unique Enumeration Forms (EFs) have been distributed to almost all electors across the 12 states and union territories and have been largely returned well within the scheduled period. Electors can verify their own names, as well as the names of their relatives in the previous SIR-based electoral rolls while providing information in the enumeration form. The Draft Roll, to be published on December 16th, will include the names of all electors whose enumeration forms have been received. Importantly, citizens are not required to submit any documents during the enumeration phase, other than returning the duly filled and signed form. This clears any real or apprehended inconvenience especially of the vulnerable sections of the society.

Booth Level Officer (BLO)

Every polling booth area is served by a Booth Level Officer (BLO), providing doorstep interface and services to electors—a system unique in the world. BLOs have faithfully served the electoral process over the years, even though election duty is a part-time responsibility for them. During the enumeration phase, BLOs are required to visit each household at least three times to distribute and collect Enumeration Forms (EFs).

BLOs not only deliver the EFs to all existing electors but also assist them in verifying and linking their names—or their relatives' names—with the previous SIR rolls from 2002–2004. To further facilitate electors, the Election Commission of India (ECI) has introduced the "Book-a-Call with BLO" facility and maintains a toll-free helpline (1950). For urban voters and temporary migrants, there is also provision to submit the form online. In recognition of their critical role, the work conditions of BLOs have received empathetic response from EC.

Democratic-Demographic Necessity

India's socio-economic dynamics, with a population nearing 15 billion, and rapid urbanisation have led to frequent migration, resulting in voters being registered at more than one location. Despite annual revisions of the electoral rolls, names of deceased individuals or those who have permanently moved often remain, causing the rolls to become unnaturally inflated. Additionally, young citizens who turn 18 may sometimes be omitted and wrongful inclusion of foreigners, whether by omission or commission also needs correction. Political parties have periodically raised concerns about the quality of electoral rolls during assembly and parliamentary elections.

The Special Intensive Revision (SIR) addresses these issues by filtering out absent, shifted, deceased, or duplicate entries, making the electoral roll more accurate and streamlined. When SIR was initiated in Bihar, the state's electoral list had 7.89 crore electors, of which 65 lakh names were removed, primarily falling into these categories. At the same time, the inclusive nature of the exercise is evident from the addition of about 22 lakh new eligible electors to Bihar's draft list.

The final electoral rolls are scheduled to be published on February 14th, 2026. This will follow two critical steps immediately after the publication of the draft roll: the claims and objections period, which continues until January 15th, and the notice and hearing phase, running concurrently until February 7th, 2026. During this period, disputes regarding the inclusion or exclusion of names will be raised and resolved. Electors whose names could not be matched or linked with the previous SIR will be notified, and their eligibility will be verified based on specified indicative documents, as notified by the Election Commission of India (ECI), along with hearings.

Impact on Turnout

The unprecedented 67% voter turnout in Bihar's assembly elections can be partly attributed to the rigorous purification of the electoral roll through the SIR, which helped eliminate the burden of ghost voters. In recent years, the Election Commission of India (ECI) has been actively working to increase voter participation, and the countrywide SIR further advances this goal. By mobilising efforts at the grassroots level, the SIR exercise also raises awareness among citizens about the importance of their vote. The importance of this initiative is reflected in the ongoing discussions and activities on the floor of Parliament.

A Cause, Serious Enough

The SIR process has progressed steadily, built on consultations with political parties at all levels. The Election Commission of India (ECI) has made "complete transparency" in the addition or deletion of electors a primary objective of SIR. Training and preparation of officials—especially BLOs, and even BLAs representing political parties—has been conducted meticulously and on schedule. Some time ago, the Commission increased the enumeration allowance for field staff, which should further motivate them in serving this national cause. Pure electoral rolls strengthen democracy—there can be no two opinions on that. In this context, the Special Intensive Revision must be regarded as a priority national agenda, to be carried out with full seriousness and purpose.

India's Maintenance and ...

- Global Partnerships & Technology Transfer: Collaborations with OEMs like Safran, Boeing, and Airbus enhance technical capability.
  - Specialisation in Advanced Segments: Increasing focus on engine overhaul, avionics, and high-value components boosts competitiveness.
  - Skilled Talent Base: A growing pool of engineering and technical professionals supports sustainable industry growth.
- With these drivers, India is steadily transitioning from a net MRO importer to a self-reliant, globally recognised maintenance hub, capable of servicing both domestic and international fleets while generating high-skill employment and fostering aerospace innovation.

Careers in MRO Industry

As the industry matures, the need for skilled engineers, technicians, aviation safety experts, and digital maintenance professionals is set to grow significantly. What once appeared as a niche domain is now emerging as a high-potential career arena, offering global exposure, technology-intensive roles and long-term professional stability.

The sector offers career opportunities across a broad spectrum of academic qualifications and technical competencies. As aircraft become more technologically advanced, the industry requires multidisciplinary expertise that blends engineering, precision maintenance, digital innovation, and safety management. This diversity offers multiple career pathways, each aligned to different skill sets and academic strengths.

Aircraft Maintenance Engineer (AME): The most well-known track is that of the AME. These professionals hold the legal authority to certify that an aircraft is airworthy and safe for flight after maintenance. Their training spans two to four years in a DGCA-approved program, followed by licensing examinations. The role demands deep technical knowledge as well as responsibility, making it ideal for those who enjoy hands-on aviation work combined with engineering precision. With experience, AMEs can progress from trainee positions to senior certifying roles, eventually leading engineering and quality teams within an MRO organisation.

Engineers: Engineering graduates—particularly in aerospace, mechanical, electrical, and avionics disciplines—form another critical pillar of the sector. Unlike AMEs, their work leans toward analytical and design-oriented responsibilities, contributing to structural assessments, systems upgrades, performance monitoring, and the integration of advanced technologies such as digital diagnostics and predictive maintenance software. Their career progression typically follows the corporate engineering ladder, from graduate engineer → project manager → technical operations or engineering leadership.

Diploma Holders and IT-Trained Technicians: There is also a strong employment pathway for diploma holders and IT-trained technicians. These individuals form the operational backbone of maintenance activities, performing tasks such as dismantling, troubleshooting, repairing, and reassembling airframes, engines and aircraft systems under the supervision of licensed engineers. This route is particularly attractive to students seeking quicker entry into the workforce through two- to three-year vocational programmes. Technicians can advance to specialist and supervisory roles, making this a growth-oriented option for technically inclined youth.

Entrance Requirements and Eligibility

- Entry into each career track depends on academic qualifications and examinations:
- AME: 10+2 with Physics, Chemistry, and Mathematics, medical fitness, and institute-level entrance tests.
  - Engineering: B.Tech/B.E. programmes require qualifying common entrance exams such as JEE Main.
  - Technician Courses: Admission is generally merit-based after 10th or 12th grade.

Where Are the Jobs?

The surge in MRO activity across India is directly translating into strong job creation and expansive career paths for young professionals. Multiple organisations—both Indian and international—are actively scaling up their operations, strengthening the industry's employment potential across engineering, technical, operational, and digital roles.

Some of the most prominent employers driving this momentum include:

- Safran's MRO Facility in Hyderabad: Focused on servicing advanced LEAP engines used by aircraft such as the Airbus A320neo and Boeing 737 MAX, this facility represents a major step toward high-value engine maintenance capabilities within India. Its expansion promises numerous opportunities in engine diagnostics, overhaul, and component-level expertise.

- AIESL (Air India Engineering Services Limited): As the largest MRO provider maintaining the fleets of India's flagship airlines, AIESL offers wide-ranging roles from line maintenance to heavy aircraft overhaul. Its presence across major airports ensures employment accessibility in multiple regions.
- GMR Aero Technic: Operating from Hyderabad Airport, GMR's MRO division is rapidly diversifying into international maintenance contracts and certified services for foreign carriers. Its growth is accelerating the need for skilled manpower in airframe, avionics, and component repair.
- Air Works: One of India's oldest and most diversified MRO service providers, Air Works contributes significantly to both civil aviation and defence aerospace. The organisation handles complex projects such as aircraft upgrades, paint and finishing, and high-level inspections for military and government fleets.

What to Study?

To qualify for roles in MRO, several educational and training pathways are particularly relevant. Each pathway aligns with different job roles - from hands-on maintenance to technical, safety and digital maintenance roles.

- Aircraft Maintenance Engineering (AME): This is the most direct and industry-recognised route for those aiming to become licensed maintenance engineers. The training covers aircraft systems, engines, airframes, avionics, maintenance procedures, safety norms, and regulatory compliance. Practical hands-on training is mandatory; it cannot be pursued via distance or online learning.
- Aerospace Engineering / Mechanical/Electrical Engineering: A traditional B.Tech or B.E. degree in these fields equips students with strong fundamentals in aerodynamics, structures, propulsion, electrical or mechanical systems - useful for design, maintenance, engineering, quality control, systems analysis, and advanced MRO roles.

- Diploma Courses in Aeronautical / Aircraft Maintenance/Aeronautical Engineering: For students who may not go the full B.Tech. route, diploma-level programmes offer a more practical, shorter-duration training in aviation maintenance fundamentals. Such courses can be stepping stones into technician-level or assistant roles in MRO.
- Specialised Technical & Safety Training — As MRO increasingly involves avionics, predictive maintenance, and safety systems, additional training (electronics, avionics, data analytics, quality assurance, supply-chain/logistics, safety certification) becomes valuable.
- Digital / IT / Data Skills for Predictive Maintenance — Given modern trends in MRO (sensor-based monitoring, data analytics for maintenance forecasting, digital diagnostics), knowledge in data science, software, electronics or related IT skills enhances employability.

What to Check before Choosing a Course?

- It is approved by DGCA (mandatory for licensed maintenance roles).
  - The curriculum includes both theory and practical training, including live aircraft/systems exposure; mere classroom knowledge is insufficient.
  - Infrastructure and labs are up to date (aircraft mock-ups, maintenance tools, avionics/engine systems) to promote hands-on learning.
  - There is industry linkage or placement support, especially with airlines or MRO providers — which boosts chances of employment after certification.
  - Eligibility criteria are met (for AME: typically Class 12 with Physics, Chemistry, Mathematics (PCM) or a 3-year engineering diploma, plus medical fitness).
- (The author is a JEE/NEET Coach)
